

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A safety device to arrest movement of an elevator car guided by non-metallic guide rails employs a friction surface mounted on a wedge. The wedge is located in proximity to an angular horizontal locator when in the unengaged position. Upon activation of the wedge during an 5 overspeed condition the horizontal locator urges the friction surface of the wedge into contact with the guide rail.